

Morpheus8: The Future of Skin Rejuvenation & Fat Remodeling

The Problem: Aging Skin

Collagen Loss

Natural decrease in collagen production over time.

Increased Laxity

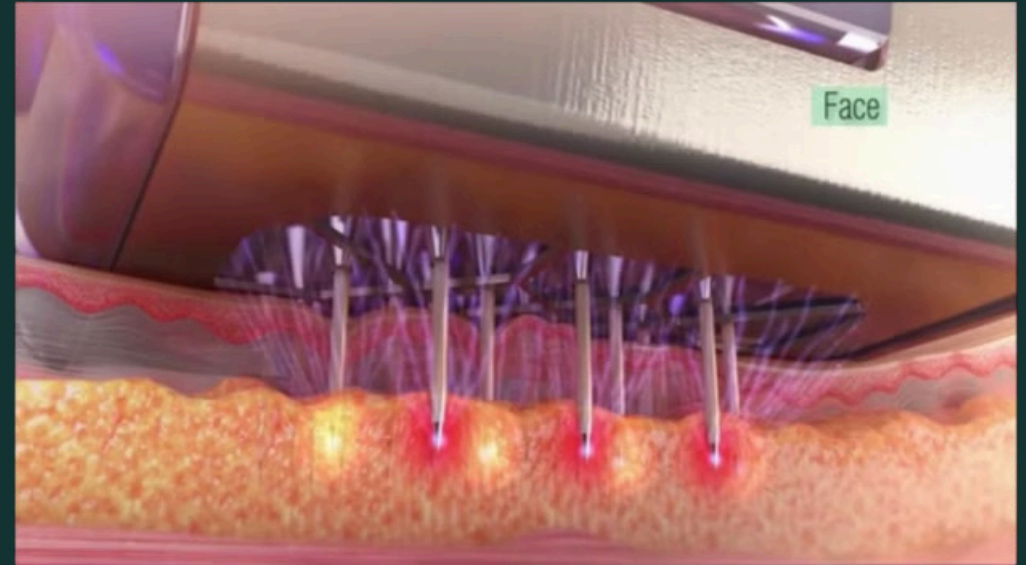

Skin becomes less firm and elastic.

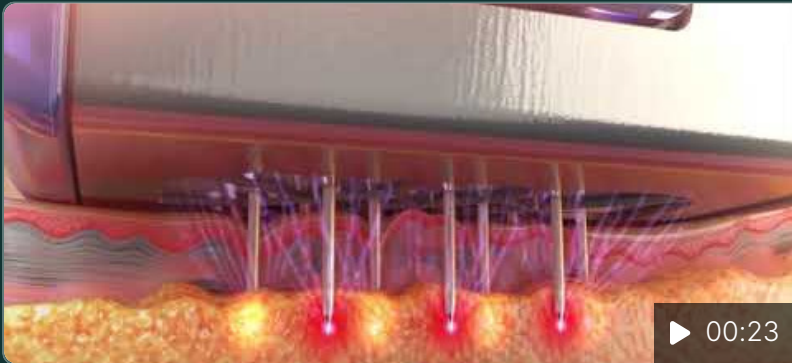

Jowl Formation

Sagging skin along the jawline creates jowls.

Step-by-Step Process: How Morpheus8 Works

Phase 1: Initial Heating (40-50°C)

For Skin Tightening: RF energy gently heats the dermis, triggering collagen production and improving skin elasticity.

Fat Reduction: The RF energy is delivered deeper (4-7mm) to target subcutaneous fat cells while preserving the skin above.

Phase 2: Thermal Coagulation (50-80°C)

For Skin Tightening: At this stage, collagen fibers contract, making the skin firmer and reducing sagging.

For Fat Reduction: Fat cells begin to coagulate and shrink, leading to gradual fat reduction without damaging surrounding tissues.

Phase 3: Collagen Denaturation (80°C)

For Skin Tightening: Old collagen fibers break down (denature), forcing the body to produce new, stronger collagen, which lifts and firms the skin.

For Fat Reduction: Fat cells undergo apoptosis (cell death), allowing the body to naturally eliminate them through the lymphatic system over time.

Phase 4: Controlled Ablation (100°C)

For Skin Tightening: At higher temperatures, superficial skin layers are gently resurfaced, improving texture, reducing scars, and enhancing glow.

For Fat Reduction: The combination of heat and microneedling ensures that as fat cells shrink, the skin remains firm and tight, preventing post-fat-loss laxity.
